

The Tiffany Olson Bill

On Dec. 7, 2005, a young woman, Tiffiany M. Olson, and her friend, Dustin C. Wilder, were involved in a fatal motorcycle accident. Tiffiany died instantly, while Dustin died alone in a hospital four hours later. The parents of these two fine young people were not notified immediately as to the whereabouts of their children because of the lack of emergency contact information.

We, the undersigned residents of the State of Florida, urge our State Legislators to enact a new bill whereas our driver's licenses would be encoded with a minimum of two emergency contact phone numbers. Emergency personnel at the scene of an accident would be able to scan the license and contact relatives immediately.

We respectfully request that such a law be named the Tiffany Olson Law.
